Sango 2015

Intensity

The essence of a unique grape variety

Our Selected Harvest. Sango is the result of the hard work of generations of the local viticultures who have made possible to express the character of our land throughout a wine, in which the soul of Tinta de Toro is revealed with a unique intensity, power and minerality.

Vintage 2015

A year of contrasts. A moderately cold and not very rainy winter gave way to a spring with rains and high temperatures, that caused a early bud sprouting that lengthened the vegetative cycle. Since the beginning of summer the temperature was decreasing that allowed the ripening at the end of August at a more temperate temperatura. September was one of the coldest in the recent years, giving smaller grapes with concentrated aromas and flavors. The harvest began at the end of September.

Vineyard and soils

Selection of our best old vines plots, over 80 years old, planted manually and on "pie franco" (phylloxera-free vines) in very poor soils, with high percentages of surface sand. These lands, humble and difficult to cultivate, express the deepest notes of the variety that shows the Tinta de Toro's unique intensity.

Winemaking and aging

Harvest selected by plots located between San Román de Hornija and Morales de Toro, achieving that only the smallest, the most concentrated and the highest quality grapes take part of this wine.

Long macerations and fermentations, at a controlled temperatura, allow the extraction of all the aroma of the variety during a slow and meticulous winemaking process.

Aging for a minimum of 20 months in exclusive new French oak barrels that come from the prestigious Allier forest, with a 225 liters capacity. Light toasted barrels are complemented by a slight percentage of highly toasted barrels, that provides the complexity and increases the mineral notes.

Bottled in February 2018 (9,856 bottles of 0.75 liters).

Tasting Note

Garnet red color with ruby hints. On the nose, it shows the deepest varietal intensity with complex and mineral aromas such as flint or wet stone, combined with notes of ripe black fruits and dry spices such as cloves or black pepper. Its profile evokes the terroir, a tribute to the most extraordinary old vines. Broad and meaty palate, notes of fruit and saline with polished tannins that lengthen its finish.

This vintage 2015 is marked by concentration and aromatic intensity, standing out for the mineral notes and the broad and structured body.
